Rosetta Commons REU: A Cyberlinked Program in Computational Biomolecular Structure & Design

Interns in this geographically-distributed REU program participate in research using Rosetta Commons software. The Rosetta Commons software library includes algorithms for computational modeling and analysis of protein structures. It has enabled notable scientific advances in computational biology, including de novo protein design, enzyme design, ligand docking, and structure prediction of biological macromolecules and macromolecular complexes. The program includes a $6,000 stipend, housing, food allowance, and travel accommodations.

RaMP: Post-Baccalaureate Training Program in Biomolecular Structure Prediction and Design

The Rosetta Commons Research and Mentoring for Postbaccalaureates (RaMP) program is a one-year fellowship program intended for students from groups underrepresented in STEM, first-generation college students, and students at under-resourced institutions to gain research experience to succeed in PhD programs.

Trainees in this geographically distributed RaMP program participate in research using the Rosetta Commons software. In addition to the research experience, the RaMP provides a training boot camp, extensive professional development, a research community, and specialized mentoring. Salary, health benefits, and funding for conference travel are included.
